FOR IMMEDIATE RELEASEResolute Building Intelligence Launches Partner Program to Accelerate Smart Building Innovation

Detroit, MI – May 20, 2025 – Resolute Building Intelligence, a leading provider of smart building analytics and operational intelligence solutions, has announced the launch of its new Partner Program, aimed at empowering HVAC and mechanical contractors, building automation companies, facility service providers, and commissioning agents to work more efficiently, be more competitive, and create recurring revenue.

As the demand for smarter, more sustainable buildings grows, Resolute's Partner Program creates a scalable path for industry professionals to integrate cutting-edge analytics, predictive maintenance, fault detection, and energy optimization into their service offerings. With buildings responsible for nearly 40% of global emissions, partners now have a powerful tool to help clients reduce energy costs, decarbonize operations, and unlock long-term value from their existing infrastructure.

"We built this program to make operational intelligence more accessible — not just for building owners, but for the entire ecosystem that supports them," said Peter Karmanos, Jr., Founder of Resolute Building Intelligence, and Chairman of its parent company, MadDog Technology. "Our partners are trusted advisors to building owners, landlords, and facilities teams. By giving them the tools to deliver data-driven insights and measurable outcomes, we're helping to modernize building operations at scale."

The program offers partners a range of benefits, including:

- Access to the Resolute platform, including advanced analytics, fault detection and diagnostics, and reporting tools
- Technical support for onboarding and customer success
- Technical training from building intelligence experts
- Marketing materials and support
- Subscription-based revenue opportunities

"Resolute's new Partner Program will provide distributors, contractors, and consultants with the training and services they need to successfully implement the company's products," notes David J. Clark, whose company OTI Consulting, located in Fort Lauderdale, is enrolled in the Partner Program. "With this Program, Resolute partners will be able to help their clients cost-effectively benefit from the insights provided by advanced fault detection and analytics in their facilities. We see this as a win for all parties."

Designed for growth, the program supports a wide range of participants — from regional engineering firms and HVAC service providers to national energy consultants and sustainability advisors.

"The shift to smart, efficient buildings is no longer optional, it's essential," says Danialle Karmanos, CEO of MadDog Technology. "Our Partner Program enables professionals to be at the forefront of that shift with the tools, support, and expertise to drive real results."

Resolute invites forward-thinking organizations to apply and join the movement toward intelligent, high-performing, and sustainable buildings.
